

Christakidou Alexandra

Alexandra Christakidou holds a B.A. from the Department of English Language and Literature at the University of Thessaloniki (2010) and a Master's Degree in Theoretical and Applied Linguistics (2012) from the same department. She also holds a Certificate of Proficiency in English from the University of Cambridge (2003). Since 2010 she has worked in Lifelong Learning Centers, Vocational Training Institutes, Schools, and Tutoring Schools. She has made presentations at Linguistic Conferences in Greece and abroad. She has published articles and chapters in linguistic journals and books. Her research interests lie in Cognitive Linguistics and Cognitive Poetics. She has participated in a research program supported by the Research Committee of A.U.TH (2013). She has participated in a research program supported by the Research Committee of A.U.TH (2013). She has been awarded in a Panhellenic Poetry Competition (2012). For the last two years, she has been coordinating the European program E.L.So.M.C.I. which aims to learn English through songs and is aimed at people with Mild Cognitive Impairment. She has been responsible for the collection of educational material, the writing of the Methodology Guide in English and Greek, the book for the learners, and the test book.

