

Panagiotopoulos Petros

Petros Panagiotopoulos studied Physics and Theology at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and received a Master's Degree and a PhD from the Theology Department of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. He is a lecturer at the Theological School of the Orthodox University of the Congo and Corresponding Member of the Pontifical Academy for Life. He worked as Editor-in-Chief of the "Pemptousia" website, in its Greek and English edition. In 2017, he was elected Assistant Professor at the Theology Department of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, in the subject "Pastoral ethics of scientific applications" and teaches the courses "Introduction to Ethics", "Christian Ethics and Bioethics", "Modern Science and Orthodox Theology", "Pastoral Theology and Scientific Ethics" and "Modern Trends in Mission". He also teaches in the Interdepartmental Program of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki "Tourism and Local Development". He is a member of the authors' team of the new Ecclesiastical Education books (Pastoral Theology) and of the Program of the Foundation for Pastoral Education of the Archdiocese of Athens, on Confession.. In 2019, his book: "Sections and Incompatibilities. Natural sciences and Theology" was published by ""Ropi"" publications.

