

Papageorgiou Niki

Dr Niki Papageorgiou is Professor in Sociology of Religion at the School of Theology of Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. She studied Theology in the School of Theology in the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki as well as Sociology, in the Roman Catholic University of Louvain-La-Neuve. She teaches Sociology of Religion, Sociology of Christianity, Religion and Society in the Middle East and Gender and Religion at the School of Theology of Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. Her scientific interests focus on Religion and Society in modern Greek society, Religious Identities and Communities in Greece and the Middle East, Migration and Religion, Gender and Religion. Her most important publications are: Tran-s-fo-rmations of sacred: Sociology and Religion in the work of Marcel Mauss, Ed. P. Pournaras, Thessaloniki 2005 (in Greek), Religion and Migration. The community of Sikhs in Greece, Ed. Kornilia Sfakianaki, Thessaloniki 2011 (in Greek), Religion in Post-dictatorship period in Greece. Limits and ambivalences, Ed. Barbounakis, Thessaloniki 2018 (in Greek), Society, Religion and Law. Overlapping Relationships and Intersections (with assoc. Professor K. Papageorgiou), Ed. Papazisi, Athens 2020 (in Greek).

