

Soumpourou Aikaterini

Aikaterini Soumpourou is a psychologist, has graduated from the Department of Psychology of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and has also been trained in Cognitive-Behavioral Psychotherapy. She has attended numerous seminars and conferences in the field of mental health, as part of her continuing education. Since 2007 she has been working as a psychologist in Alzheimer Hellas and has years of experience in neuropsychological assessment of older adults, as well as in the design and implementation of therapeutic cognitive interventions. She has also delivered speeches in the context of educational programs for caregivers of patients with dementia and has been a trainer in educational programs dedicated to health professionals in Thessaloniki and other cities of Greece. She has attended and participated with oral presentations, e-posters and workshops at Panhellenic, International and European conferences. She has participated in publications of research papers in scientific journals, as well as in books related to older adults. She has given speeches at television and radio broadcasts and has editorialized for a local magazine.

