

Traikapi Artemis

Artemis Traikapi has a bachelor's degree in psychology from Cardiff Metropolitan University. She continued with postgraduate studies in the field of Clinical Cognitive Neuropsychology at University of Strasburg, in collaboration with the Scientific College of Greece. She is currently completing her doctoral studies in Rehabilitation Sciences at Cyprus University of Technology. Her study focuses on the use of non-invasive brain stimulation, through Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation, at gamma frequency. The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of precuneus gamma brain stimulation in patients with Mild Cognitive Impairment and Alzheimer's Disease. Since 2020 she has been working as a specialist scientist at Cyprus University of Technology where she teaches in undergraduate level. Since 2019 she runs her private practice as a Clinical Neuropsychologist, in Cyprus She is founder and producer of the first podcast for Neuropsychology in Greece and Cyprus (Περί ΝευροΨυχολογίας), where cutting-edge scientific findings and important topic areas are presented and discussed.

