

Vlotinou Penelope

She received a degree in Occupational Therapy in 2004 and continued her postgraduate studies at the Democritus University of Thrace in the field of Injury Prevention, Intervention and Rehabilitation. She completed her PhD in the Department of Physical Education and Sport Science of Komotini in 2019, with a grade of “Excellent” on Gait analysis and occupational therapy approach to people with dementia. She is continuing her post doctoral research in the field of Stroke in the Department of Medicine at the Democritus University of Thrace. She has clinical experience since 2004 until today, as an occupational therapist. She has worked both in the private and public sector, which she serves until today at the university department of Neurology of the University hospital of Alexandroupolis. She has teaching experience as an Academic scholar at the Department of Occupational therapy in the University of West Attica in Athens in undergraduate as well as in postgraduate courses. Her main research interest focuses on studies on neurological diseases. She was recently elected to the position of Assistant Professor in the Occupational therapy Department of the University of West Attica in Athens.

