

Bablekos Georgios

MD, MSc, PhD is Assistant Professor, University of West Attica, Athens, Greece, School of Health Sciences & Care, Department of Occupational Therapy, with known object “Applied Medical Treatment of Clinical Lesions in the Human Body”. He is: i) Graduate of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki: School of Health Sciences / Department of Medicine, ii) Doctor: Medical School / Department of Experimental Physiology, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece, iii) Holder of a Diploma of a Postgraduate Program / Medical School, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece, iv) Holder of the Medical Specialty “Thoracic Surgery”. Dr Bablekos presents a significant university teaching work for more than 15 consecutive academic years, as well as 28 publications (peer-review system) indexed in PubMed, 71 participations (peer-review system) in national conferences and 36 participations (peer-review system) in international conferences (h-index: 13, 534 citations, Google Scholar, University of West Attica, Athens, Greece). He is a reviewer in medical journals all indexed in PubMed, while he has processed more than 100 reviews from 2012 to the present, on articles submitted for publication from other researchers. He has also participated in the editing of scientific books based on Anatomy, First Aids and Respiratory Diseases.

