

Dimaki Vasiliki

I am a graduate of the Department of Psychology, School of Social Sciences and Humanities of the University of Western Macedonia and now a student of the Interdepartmental Master's Programme "Care and Support of Children and Adolescents with Special Health Needs in the Community". I have a very good knowledge of English, French and computer skills. Since my undergraduate years I have been highly aware of various issues related to Clinical and Social Psychology and I have attended various workshops and seminars so far for further training. My undergraduate internship has been in a Mental Health Centre and I have volunteered at an Amea Mental Health Centre. Throughout my undergraduate studies, our professors encouraged us to actively engage in research. I had participated in various group researches during the course of my studies both in writing and in sampling and drawing conclusions. However, thanks to the thesis I was conducting in my final year of my studies, my research interest focused on cognitive psychology and in particular on the evaluation and adaptation of the Greek version of a new self-administered electronic cognitive testing tool for Greek elderly people.
