

Giannouli Vaitsa

Ph.D. is a postdoctoral researcher in Neuroscience, School of Medicine, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece and serves as adjunct lecturer at the European University Cyprus, Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences and Department of Psychology, University of Western Macedonia. She received a B.S. and M.S. in Psychology and Cognitive Psychology and Neuropsychology from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, a Ph.D. in Neuroscience from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, and a M.S. in Health Care Management from Hellenic Open University. Prior to her current position she was a postdoctoral researcher at Bulgarian Academy of Sciences, Institute of Neurobiology and School of Medicine, University of Ioannina, Greece. Her clinical and research interests focus on the application of neuropsychological methods and advanced neuroimaging techniques for both structural and functional evaluation of the brain-behavior relationship in neurological and psychiatric diseases. She has worked for several years as a tutor and an adult educator. She has published articles in academic and scientific journals and has made presentations at international conferences. Her research interests are in the area of cognitive psychology, neuropsychology, health psychology and quantitative/qualitative methods of research.

